

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

MLPS CEO Announces His Retirement

December 12, 2025: William (Bill) Rayburn, Chief Executive Officer of the Middlesex-London Paramedic Service (MLPS), announced today that he will be retiring from his role. Mr. Rayburn retires from MLPS following a 26-year career as Chief Administrative Officer of Middlesex County.

At the request of the Board of MLPS, Mr. Rayburn provided transitional leadership and guidance to MLPS through a period of organizational growth and development. The MLPS Board thanks Mr. Rayburn for his commitment to effectively and efficiently implementing a number of organizational and administrative improvements aimed at strengthening employee supports, updating internal processes, investing in facilities and supporting innovations in service delivery.

As he transitions into retirement, Mr. Rayburn intends to pursue his love of travel with his family and spend more time on his private sector interests.
